One of the most common mistakes in English is the incorrect usage of the phrase If I was. In fact, you will hear native speakers commonly make this mistake. Here are a few examples of this mistake: If I was you, I would try to find a new job. If she was here, she would explain the situation. If I ...

Which Is Correct: If I Was or if I Were?

If I were you, I wouldn't tempt those alligators by swimming here. (Were is the proper choice because the statement is contrary to fact.) I have often wished that I were more like Dick Pope, the father of waterskiing. (Were is the correct choice even though the main verb is in the past tense. The statement is still contrary to fact.)
